

Scuba diver training with the Auckland University Underwater Club

AUUC has a history of unreliable students signing onto dive courses and then cancelling at the last minute. As a result, we have been forced to invent this form. The below conditions may sound a bit over the top, but in reality they are basic common sense.

Please read the below information and sign at the bottom.

I understand that the AUUC Training Officer is a volunteer and I agree not to stuff them around.

I agree to attend each session of my dive course in a physically able condition – ie not too hung over!

I agree to attend each session of my dive course on time. There is a lot to cover in the course, and not much time to do it. I understand that the instructor will start on time and if I am even 5 minutes late I will miss potentially vital information.

If I do arrive late, it is at my instructor's discretion whether I need to repeat the lesson. Any lessons missed will be made up at my expense at a date/time convenient to the shop and instructor.

I understand that if I am too sick to dive, I must provide a medical certificate. Any dives missed will be made up at my expense at a date/time convenient to the shop and instructor.

I understand that if I have a genuinely good reason to withdraw from a course, I MUST give the Training Officer at least 2 weeks notice. A refund will only be provided if the Training Officer can manage to find a replacement.
